The Real Situation.
Washington, March 10.—(Special to Louisville Post)—"The President will do nothing to force war, and everything to avoid it, but he is determined upon the policy to free Cuba from the Spanish yoke."

These were the words of a senator to your correspondent this morning who had just left the White House after an interview with the President.

The hope is expressed here today that Spain will act in accordance with the advice of nations friendly to her, and upon the request of President McKinley, withdraw her troops from the island of Cuba. It is believed, however, that she would accede to this demand with the assurance from the government that its present dynasty shall be kept in power.

To save the throne of the young king is the Alpha and Omega now of Spain's policy. It is possible, though not probable, that it can be saved through peaceful negotiations. While still holding that a settlement may be reached through diplomacy, the president is buying powder and all factories are working to their limit, yet Commander Brownson is commanded to secure large supplies of it abroad.

It is said that England is more than willing to offer aid to the United States in case of war, because England herself may have trouble in which she will be glad to have the help of America. The cable now that an effort will be made to have action taken by the house of lords looking to an offer of the British fleet to America in case of war with Spain, is no more than had been expected here by those who have been on the inside.

Brownson's chief commission will be to inspect the ships on which this government has already secured options, and if they be what they were represented, to close the deal at once.

The Maine inquiry is nearing the end, and the report was sent by a secret messenger to the president. It is now confidently predicted by those in high official life that this report will not only disprove the accident theory, but will produce substantial proofs that the Maine was destroyed by treachery and design of Spanish officers.

Simultaneously with this report, the president will send to congress the consular reports, as evidence that autonomy is a failure in proof of the saving and devastation there, in recognition of the truth of the statement that the war is one, not of conquest, but of extermination.

The president does not believe that Spain can pay an indemnity and be seriously considering not demanding one. Such a demand would delay a settlement until late into the spring, when yellow fever would make Cuba a death trap to our soldiers. The president said to congress yesterday that promptness was as necessary as action itself.

The consular reports and the report of the court of inquiry will be the interlude to the final act.

This will be followed by a declaration of independence, for the president is set upon a policy of intervention and cannot be swerved from it.

The President is in direct communication with the insurgents. He is getting data from them as to the details of their strength and the force of government they have established, and also with a view of learning whom they desire to have recognized when their independence shall be recognized.

A telegram this afternoon states that the big fighting monitor Manzanilla and the ram Khadidji were placed in commission at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the League Island navy yard. This gives the government two more formidable fighting machines in first-class trim if the war looked for by so many does materialize.

An Indemnity is Demanded

The blowing up of the battleship Maine in the window of Noah's Ark has caused an indignation meeting of the citizens of Paducah, and they have declared an indemnity from this popular store. The management have compromised with the citizens' claim and will make war with their stock. The declaration reads that on Monday evening Noah's Ark will open the Battle of Bargains, by the trumpet sound and sweet strains of music, to begin with "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," at 6:30 p.m., by Prof. Hobson's Opera House Orchestra, and will continue throughout the stillness of the night. Two thousand souvenirs are to be given away. On Tuesday, the 15th (our birthday), the hot-shot and shell of battle with goods will begin, and continue for two days.

Great Will Be the Fighting

When such articles as a one-gallon glass oil can for 10 cents will be given; a ten-quart chamber pail for 12 cents; a chamber set for $1.10; one dozen table tumblers for 15 cents; a set of knives and forks for 28 cents, and thousands of other goods at the same low prices. Everything in the whole house will be sold in this great Opening and Birthday Battle Sale.

BOTH READY FOR WAR.

Spain and the United States Making Preparations—McKinley Waiting for the Verdict.

REPORT WILL SHOW TREACHERY

McKinley Will Demand an Indemnity and the Freedom of Cuba—Spain's Refusal Means War.

HAVANA HARBOR BEING STRENGTHENED

Washington, March 11.—It is now confidently expected that the report of the Naval Court of Inquiry will reach the city tomorrow.

It is known that the report will prove that the Maine was destroyed by treachery.

It is now known that President McKinley will demand an indemnity from Spain and also the freedom of Cuba and that the refusal of Spain to grant both will precipitate war.

Spain is rushing preparations for war as fast as possible. The harbor at Havana is being strengthened and more soldiers and warships are being sent to Havana.

War is regarded here as inevitable, and it is believed that as soon as the verdict of the naval board is rendered that the president will make known officially his plans for reparation on Spain.

Expected Next Week.
Washington, March 12.—Secretary Long stated yesterday that he expected that the report of the Maine court of inquiry would be received by the navy department some time next week. Secretary Long made this statement in regard to the purchasing of war ships by the United States.

"I think it is only fair to state that we have been getting the prices and condition of available ships from our representatives abroad for the information of the department. But no conclusions have as yet been reached in regard to the purchase of them."

Free Cuba in Thirty Days.
New York, March 11.—A dispatch to the World from Washington says: Senator William E. Chandler, of New Hampshire, dictated the following statement for the World:

"I believe the president means to make Cuba free. All the indications are in that direction, according to the information of those who see most of him and to whom he talks with the greatest freedom."

"I cannot doubt that Mr. McKinley intends to announce his purpose in this respect within the next thirty days. To my mind he has no thought of allowing six months more to go by without accomplishing the independence of the island."

The consul reports and the report of the court of inquiry will be the interlude to the final act.

This will be followed by a declaration of independence, for the president is set upon a policy of intervention and cannot be swerved from it.

The President is in direct communication with the insurgents. He is getting data from them as to the details of their strength and the force of government they have established, and also with a view of learning whom they desire to have recognized when their independence shall be recognized.

A telegram this afternoon states that the big fighting monitor Manzanilla and the ram Khadidji were placed in commission at 2 o'clock this afternoon at the League Island navy yard. This gives the government two more formidable fighting machines in first-class trim if the war looked for by so many does materialize.

Italy Helping Spain.

New York, March 11.—A dispatch to the World from Rome says: There is feverish activity in the Italian government in manufacturing arms and ammunition at Turin, Florence and Naples, after idleness since the end of the African campaign.

They are running overtime.

The World correspondent learns on authority that large orders for munitions of war have been received from Spain, and that the Italian government is willing to fill them in an indirect way by placing new arms in the hands of the Italian troops and selling the old ones to intermediary traders, who would hand them to the Spanish authorities.

Spain has depended largely on Italy latterly for her arms.

New Men Enlisted.

Chicago, March 11.—The recruiting officer of the United States army located in Chicago received this telegram yesterday from the adjutant-general at Washington:

fitted for artillery, heavy and light, and send them to Fort Sheridan."

Within a few hours after the telegram had been posted on the bulletin boards over 500 men had applied for enlistment.

Late Madrid Cable.

Madrid, March 11.—Political circles here realize that Spain is facing a grave problem. In view of the attitude of the United States it is understood Spain has changed its Cuban policy and is now countering the co-operation of the Constitutional party to prevent an excuse for intervention in Cuba by the United States.

It is denied that Senor Gulton, Spanish Minister of foreign affairs, is about to resign and be replaced by Senor Castillo, now Ambassador of France.

It is believed Great Britain would become an ally of the United States in case of war.

After Heavy Gales.

Washington, March 11.—The work of war preparation proceeds with unabated vigor, although it has now become so open and constant as to assume a routine aspect.

When completed, the government will have a war footing such as has not existed at any time in its history. Yesterday Secretaries Alger and Long were busy with contractors for war supplies. The heads of the big Bethlehem steel works had been invited to a personal conference on the subject of supplying heavy guns for fortifications.

Large orders are expected to follow.

Secretary Long had before him a bunch of cable dispatches from naval attaches abroad stating the condition of various warships now being built, and the terms. It was stated positively that Great Britain had imposed no objection to our purchase of ships in English yards.

President Griscom, of the American line of steamers, conferred with Long as to the prospects of pressing the St. Louis and St. Paul into service as part of the flying squadron under Commodore Schley.

ON THE INDIANA.

Orders Expected to Paint the Ships
Sea Green.

Detroit, Mich., March 11.—Walter Bostwick, of this city, has received a letter from his brother George, a sailor on the battleship Indiana, now at Dry Tortugas, in which he says they are keeping bat-watches aboard ship and a sharp lookout against surprises from torpedo boats. He also says that the men stop at their guns every night, and that they are expecting orders every day to paint the vessel a sea green from stem to stern. He says the ship now has a crew of 450 men and are expecting another batch every hour.

Bostwick concludes by saying the crew is severely drilled every day and every man eagerly looks forward to a fight with Spain.

The Monteith goes down off the City of Troy.

Hawesville, March 11.—The steamer Monteith sank in the Ohio near Troy, Ind., this morning in fifteen feet of water. The boat sprang a leak in inextricable way. Her value is $300, and fully insured.

OTHER LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS.

Monticello, March 11.—The whole business portion of this town was burned last night. The fire originated in the new court house, which was burned, with the jail, and the jailers' house. From these buildings the fire spread until two hotels, three general stores, a drug store, a grocery and an implement house were also destroyed. When the fire was gotten under control, only three stores were left in the whole town. It is thought that the cause of the fire was an incendiary. The blowhounds have been employed, and if the fire-bugs are caught they will be lynched. The loss was fully $100,000.

THE CUBANS are taking no chances.

They continue to win victories over their hated oppressors.

As long as pistols are considered necessary portions of men's wearing apparel and just so long as children are allowed to use them as playthings, just so long will such occurrences take place as the accidental killing of little Reedy Norman by a playmate at Mayfield.

THE Czar of Russia is the arbiter of the peace of Europe, and he proposes to lose none of his influence. His imperial ukase, issued yesterday, authorizing the expenditure of 30,000,000 roubles to build a navy, shows that he proposes to lose none of his power and influence.

JAPAN is aching for a war with Russia, if cable dispatches may be believed. A war with Russia, however, would not be pastime like the war with China. It is very probable that Japan is indulging in a game of bluff. The peculiarity of Russia however is that she never resorts to that. The Autocrat of the Frozen North moves slowly, but when he does act he is invincible.

The Globe-Democrat is universally conceded to be one of the few great American newspapers. In all the West and Southwest it has no rival worthy of the name. Strictly Republican in politics, it is noted for its fairness to all parties and factions, and above all, for the strict impartiality and absolute reliability of its news service, which is the best and most complete in the land. The events of each succeeding day make it more apparent that the policy of President McKinley and the administration has been characterized throughout by the rarest wisdom, and show unmistakably that the President has been most thoroughly informed of the true situation of affairs; that he has not been swerved from his chosen line of conduct and will not be swerved in the future. The desire of the American people today is to see Cuba made free. That desire will soon be realized. Humanity will find in the United States an ardent champion of the rights of the struggling insurgents. This may be said to be the President's policy in a nutshell. "Cuba must be free. It is, however, very probable that the breaking out of war will depend solely upon the action of the Spanish government. The Maine was blown up by Spanish treachery.

The punishment that will be meted out to Spain for that terrible massacre of American citizens will be the loss of Cuba—the island to retain which Spain has expended millions of dollars and sacrificed the lives of hundreds of thousands of her young men. That island is now lost to Spain. When the ill-fated Maine sank beneath the waves of Havana harbor, the days of Spanish supremacy in Cuba were numbered. Spain may not accept the inevitable at once and war may follow. But to the American people the war will be welcomed as a duty that this nation owes to humanity and to the honor of the Old Flag. Whether or not an indemnity is demanded from Spain, the punishment that is in store for that treacherous nation is the most severe and most humiliating that could be devised. Robbed of her American possessions, the last semblance of empire will have departed from what was once the proudest and haughtiest of European nations.

Mr. J. B. Voris, Late of Brazil, Gives Some Interesting Points About the "Nietheroy."

She is a Second-Hand Merchant's Vessel, Manned With One Patent Dynamite Gun. Was Shot But Once.

The United States government will certainly get beautifully bunched, if she purchases the "dynamite cruiser," Nietheroy, of Brazil. A great deal is being said in the papers about the purchase of this boat, but perhaps no one knows more about the vessel herself than Mr. J. B. Voris, who is visiting his uncle, Dr. C. E. Whitesides, on Jefferson street.

Mr. Voris, whose Brazilian exploits have been before mentioned in the SUN, saw the "Nietheroy" only a couple of months ago in the harbor at Rio Janeiro. He then learned her history, and learned that she was practically worthless as a fighter or defender.

She was a second-hand merchant's vessel in New York harbor in 1893, when the Brazilian revolution began. She was foisted on the Brazilian government by American agents for an exorbitant price, and sent down with a squadron to assist the Brazilian government in quelling the revolution. Her name was previous to her departure the El Cid, and it is said she was at one time named the Nada.

She is now only a common merchant vessel. She is manned with one patent dynamite gun, which was never shot but once, and it is not certain it was ever shot at all. Ft. Thomas is the place it is claimed to have once been shot.

Capt. Baker was in command of her in the Brazilian harbor at the time. She is the boat said to have made the old rebel admiral hold up his hands before a single shot had been fired, when she steamed into the harbor at Rio.

A British surgeon who was aboard the ship on which Mr. Voris left Rio Janeiro, however, claimed to have been aboard the flag ship when the old rebel surrendered. He threw up his hands, according to the surgeon, because he was half starved, all provisions having been shot off some time before, and further resistance being impossible.

The so-called "dynamite destroyer," however, is said to be practical worthless, with its one gun that was never fired but once, and probably not then. Mr. Voris has seen it, and knows its history. He thinks the same men who buoed the Brazilian government into buying it, are now trying to earn another commission on its sale by doing the United States government the same way.

NEWS NOTES.

In the senate Wednesday chairman Davis attempted to take up the Hawaiian question by moving an executive session to consider the Iaon amendment, which provides for submitting the question of annexation to the Hawaiian voters. Senator Bacon objected, and the matter went over, Mr. Davis stating that he would proceed in the same manner day by day.

The United States government has directed collector of customs Ivey, of Alaska, to ascertain if the British flag has been hoisted on the White Pass, and whether or not to locate his customs officers on the line claimed by the United States, which would reduce the protection to the citizens in the disputed territory.

As we always do, with that sacred touch.

The things most dear to a memory.

How happy I was in this tiny blue.

I walked with Harry, his steps divine.

On the sweet, sweet strains of that Mexican waltz.

And his velvety, languid eye ashine.

And this soft pink silk with the duchess lace.

Bert said, with his blue eyes glowing light.

As he pressed my hand in his trembling palm.

That looked like a queen in a book that night.

And Jack, dear fellow, how fond he was.

Of this white mill with its belt of gold.

He crushed these bows—how I scolded too.

That dared so much—he was always bold.

Dear white duckling, you're the best of friends.

I'll told you nicely, you'll do next year.

Ab, many a ramble I've had with you.

We'll have them all over again my dear.

Here's my boating serge and the sailor hat,

Ab that row on the shadowy dreaming.

Profound in me as always he loved me that day.

And somehow his voice had a strange low murmur.

He's pale gold stick with moonbeam pearls.

I wore that right when I met Robert.

Robert with the dusk in his Spanish eyes.

And that graceful, monarchal prince of a year.

How that air connects like a golden dream,

On the seat of that dreamsome at my throat.

And the magic and mystery of eyes and voice.

As he fled for the flower to pluck on blossom.

I always loved this pasture lawn,

Wore it that day to the cliff with Ned.

Why, here is the four leaf to pluck at my throat.

As we stood to the hillside with the rocks over-head.

My arms were full of the wavy ferns,

So cool and sweet, with that damp earth scent.

He was awfully still—then I dared a glance.

When all of a sudden his dark hair bent.

He sprang up and he drew me close.

His chap was crushing my ferns to death,

But he did not heed on lips and cheek.

I felt like, clanging, breathing.

His madness and folly I never forgot—

For fellow was too harsh that time.

He left that night, and the band somehow

Had lost the rhythm and magic and rhyme.</
